

Carrie Barcomb was born and raised in Northeastern Maryland, near the Susquehanna River and Chesapeake Bay. She graduated from the Maryland Institute, College of Art, and has worked as technical illustrator and art director for the federal government and private corporations. Her oil paintings are vibrant, colorful, and expressive. She draws inspiration from our natural world and everyday life. She loves to work in all genres from portrait to still-life to landscape. Her landscape subjects vary widely from the Adirondack Mountains, to coastal Maine, to rural Brandywine Valley. She lives with her family in Media, PA.